What does Thaw want of liberty when he can attend a football game and eat turkey, all on the same day?

They have forced the auto mail vans to go slower in New York. Pretty soon it will be safe to go to the big city.

Among other things, the snow brings the silence of the paved street, thus justifying its fall. Therefore, welcome snow!

President Wilson slipped over to New York to-day to let his right hand know what his left hand could do on the grid-iron.

Announcement that the United States imported $57,000,000 in diamonds and other precious stones last year reveals that a few actresses have been supplied.

The complexity of the reported conference between Charles A. Prouty and members of the Progressive party of Vermont, at which, it was announced to the press later, the chance was offered to Mr. Prouty to run for the United States Senate, grows with the retelling. Following Mr. Prouty's positive assertion that if he should run for the Senate it must be as a Republican, comes a statement of E. W. Gibson of Brattleboro, a prominent Progressive of southern Vermont, who was reported to have been present at the conference. In Friday's Brattleboro Reformer Mr. Gibson makes the apparently confident assertion that he was not present at the reported conference when the nomination was offered to Mr. Prouty, saying: "I have not attended such a conference anywhere." In addition, Mr. Gibson makes the following positive statement regarding his belief in the matter of incubating candidacies:

"Furthermore, I do not believe a nomination to that office has been offered to anyone. I know of no select few of the members of the Progressive party who could make the offer in any form. The nomination must come from the Progressive party voters through a convention or a direct primary, and be expressive of the desire of the rank and file of the party members."

It may be stated that Mr. Gibson's ideas are somewhat along the line of belief held quite generally that the national Progressive party claimed to steer clear of bossism in politics, whereas the Vermont branch apparently is running straight into it. In taking this position, the general public is casting no reflections on Mr. Prouty or on his ability.

MILLIONS FOR A GOOD WORK.

One of the most remarkable money campaigns ever conducted in the United States was the two weeks' search for $4,000,000 in New York, with which to erect buildings for the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. throughout the metropolitan district. Such a task would seem impossible of accomplishment probably in every other city of the country, even those which have had the reputation of being more open-hearted and less caloused to the cries of need than New York has been; and for a time it seemed impossible of accomplishment in that great center of wealth. However, the energy which the sponsors for the movement put into their work was so appealing and the purchases for which the money was being raised so meritorious that the sympathies of wealthy people were stirred as were the sympathies of the persons able to give not more than a dollar; and, with the allowance of an extra day for campaigning, the desired amount was subscribed and considerably over. No other city in the country has ever tried to raise so much money for Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. work, and so the effort stands out as a tremendous and record-breaking success. But aside from the gratification over the accomplishment of a task to which one has determinedly set oneself, there is the far greater pleasure over the anticipation of what the four million of dollars will do toward assisting in the up-building of the city by furnishing centers for the moral and physical development of the young men and young women of the city. That benefit can scarcely be measured in dollars and cents; it is expected to be incalculable. The four millions of dollars will bear fruit in a better equipped people, and therein New York is very fortunate.

Immigrants Who Stay.

When immigrants are classified according to nationality or race it is interesting to observe how the groups differ in regard to immigration aims and habits. Some we have learned to know as being largely migratory, not inclined to stay long in the field to which they come, but only bee-like to gather the available honey—initiated with "am"—and carry it quickly back to their native hives. But which of the incoming races are contributing the strongest currents of new blood to American citizenship? The largest proportion of immigrants who stay does not necessarily belong to the race that provides the largest immigration in any given period. This is seen when we take into account the emigration of people that race in the same time.

Light on the subject is at hand in the statistics of immigration and emigration for the 15 months ending with September last. In that period, as has been the case for years, the immigrants from the south of Italy were the most numerous, being 320,716. But the actual addition to our population was no more than 227,917, or 71 per cent, because in the same period 92,788 persons of that race emigrated from our shores. While the Polish immigration was smaller, the proportion remaining was larger: 226,100 were admitted, and 31,803 departed, the number staying being 194,297, or about 86 per cent. The percentage of German immigrants added to American population was almost the same, 104,239 having come in and 14,854 gone out, leaving 89,385.

But we find all these percentages eclipsed when we examine the Hebrew figures, though the totals are smaller than the south Italian and the Polish. The Hebrew immigration in the 15 months was 153,185; the Hebrew emigration in the same period was only 8,632; leaving in this country 144,553, or no less than 94.4 per cent. Of the Armenians, Bohemians, Moravians and Syrians who come into the United States 91 or 92 per cent remain, but altogether they number only some 35,000. The Jews are, above all other races, the immigrants who stay. Some there are who dream of re-peopling Palestine, but far larger numbers seem to find in America their promised land.—Boston Herald.

JINGLES AND JESTS

Up-to-Date.

"Your former speeches were models of oratory," said the solicitous friend. Now you are using colloquialisms dangerously near slang."

"Yes, replied Senator Sorghum cheerily; "these are 1913 models."—Washington Star.

Consanguinary Battles.

"Those two boys next door are quarrelling all the time."

"That's so. If you saw 'em fighting together you'd never dream they were only half-brothers."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Long Run Is Unpopular.

"Honesty always wins in the long run." "Yes, I know; but a man is likely to be regarded as an old fogey or a weakling if he doesn't take the short cut now and then."

Faith.

I jes' don't know ef de colm'll grow, But I plants hit jes' de same; I jes' don't know ef de wind'll blow, But I watch an' pray, and I resp an' sow.

An' de sun he rise, an' de ribber flow, An' de good Lawd know my name.

I jes' can't tell ef de cotton sell, But I toils on jes' de same; De birds they build where de spring sap swell, An' dey know enough for a rainy spell, An' dat's lots more dan they gwine ter tell.

An' de good Lawd knows my name.

So I watch an' pray as I goes my way, An' I toils on jes' de same; De rose is sweet, but de rose can't stay, But I'm mighty glad when it blooms my way; De night fall dark, but de Lawd send day, An' de good Lawd knows my name.

MONTPELIER.

Two Deaths Yesterday, Those of William Pickard and Mrs. Harrigan.

Mrs. Jeremiah Harrigan, aged 83 years, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Matthew J. Doyle, as a direct result of a fall nine days ago, although for some time she had been afflicted with a cancerous growth on the brain and in poor health. Mrs. Harrigan was born in County Kerry, Ireland, and came to America 60 years ago, settling first in Northfield. Fifty-five years ago, she married Jeremiah Harrigan, who died 11 years ago. For about 35 years she has lived with her daughter in this city. Three daughters survive—Mrs. Doyle, Mrs. Herbert Currier and Mrs. C. C. Page, all of this city. There are also 22 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Kenneth Gale of Barre met with what might easily have proved a fatal accident last night, when he was taking the midnight train for Barre and slipped on the snowy step, falling between the station platform and moving train. Gale, who plays with Riley's orchestra, which had been furnishing music for the Co. I dance in the armory last night, was carrying several instruments, and before he could save himself, he had fallen. Patrolman McAvoy grasped Gale and kept him from being drawn under the train and also signaled for the train to stop. Gale was uninjured.

William H. Pickard died suddenly last night of a shock. Through the day he worked at his paint shop and appeared in his usual health, but retired early and died within 10 minutes. Mr. Pickard was born in Ipswich, Mass., 57 years ago and 26 years ago was married to Ella Langley of this city in Ipswich. After his marriage he lived six years in Andover, N. H., being employed in the outlying shops, coming from there to Montpelier, where for nearly 20 years he has been a painter and contractor. His son, Leroy, has been a partner with him in his business, being now located in Bethel. Mr. Pickard was an Odd Fellow, in politics a Republican and attended the Methodist church. His father died about two weeks ago. He is survived by his wife, son, and three brothers, Oscar and Henry of Ipswich, and Washington Pickard, jr., of New Haven, Conn. Edward Billings Webb, a former Montpelier boy, and Miss Georgia Whinnell of East Arlington were married at Bellows Falls Wednesday, the groom's father, Rev. A. H. Webb of Northfield, performing the ceremony. The bride and groom were unattended. They left on a wedding trip to Boston and on their return will reside in Bellows Falls, where the machine is employed by the Vermont Farm Machine company, by which company the bride was also employed previous to her marriage.

George C. St. John, a stone cutter, was in city court yesterday morning and pleaded guilty to a charge of breach of the peace. The case was continued for sentence.

The first meeting of the creditors in the bankruptcy case of George Watson of Barre will be held Dec. 9 in the office of W. N. Theriault, E. R. Davis of Barre being attorney for the bankrupt. Mr. Watson's liabilities are given as $841 and his assets as $320, all of which is claimed exempt.

Building and repairing attended to promptly by day or contract. H. F. Johnson, 30 Richardson street. Telephone 77-2.
